However, if you are hosting a birthday party, you may have to spend upwards of $1,000 to have your own custom bounce house. The higher price often includes extras like set up and takedown. If you want to save money, consider sharing the cost with other parents.

The cost of inflatable bounce house rentals varies widely. A standard bounce house, for example, can range from $100 to $250. Standard bounce houses have a single jumping area, see-through mesh walls, and may not have a roof. The standard moon bounce house rental is typically fifteen feet by 15 feet in size. It is possible to rent one with multiple jumping areas. You can also rent a combo unit and combine it with other inflatable attractions to make your event more exciting.

If you have a large group of toddlers or preschoolers, check the size of the inflatable bounce house before booking it. A nine-foot square bounce house can accommodate three small children. If you have more than five toddlers, consider a fifteen-foot square bounce house. However, if you're hosting a large family reunion, a fifteen-foot square bounce house is a more spacious option. Make sure you understand the bounce house rental policy and the weight limits before booking one.

In order to avoid a lawsuit, you should also register your inflatable bounce house business as a LLC. Insurers can charge up to $750 per year for a certificate of liability. By doing this, you'll avoid hefty fines and shut-downs. Make sure you have your clients sign a release of liability form before accepting any payment. Once you've formed your business, make sure you have a license to do business. If you wish to learn more about this, visit Little Rascals Jumpers Corona CA
